ABSTRACT

August 17, 2018, exactly 73 years of Indonesian independence, independence from Japanese colonialism, independence from various colonialism that claimed the people's right. Constitutionally free, but still many of us have not really felt the true freedom. Indonesia is not yet fully independent, there is still a lot of homework for this nation to be able to "independence" as a whole.

The development of capitalist economy in Indonesia controlled by the conglomerates with various forms of monopoly, oligopoly, corruption, collusion and nepotism (KKN); Rampant rule of power; Law Enforcement Crisis (legislative, judicative under the executive power); Political crisis (the decisive role of the central government); Confidence crisis (the destruction of the political, legal and economic system resulted in people's disbelief of the government); The level of education of the labor force is still relatively low; Teachers issues; Morality of the nation that is no longer in accordance with the personality of the Indonesian nation based on Pancasila; Criminals are increasingly desperate; Drugs as a serious threat to the younger generation, where recorded number of drug users 5.9 million and 40 people die every day in Indonesia, and many other things more.

The era of industrial revolution 4.0, where there is a digital revolution and access to information and knowledge is almost limitless. All machines are connected through an internet system or known by cyber as well as digital applications, changes are very fast, Indonesia must also be ready with the surprises of this fourth industrial revolution. Significant developments in the field of technology shook many industries and companies, also breaking down the limitations previously owned by the industry. It is important to change consumer expectations that must be balanced with innovation, product improvement, and services. Need to commit to quickly customize and improve the quality of labor, both in the trade, manufacturing and agricultural sectors that are irrelevant to the current system, especially in terms of innovation and forging skills, creativity is no longer confined within its limitations, and at the end of the day, robot predicted to replace human work.

The purpose of national development is set forth in the Preamble of the 1945 Constitution, paragraph IV, which is to protect the entire nation of Indonesia and the entire blood of Indonesia, promote the general welfare, educate the life of the nation, and participate in implementing the world order based on independence, eternal peace and ...; To enter the general welfare, the main themes are well known, industrialization creates employment, minimize the poverty, but creates alot of environment problems.

Such environmental issues resulting from development:(1) the problem of the polluted river, industrial waste containing various chemical substances in it, domestic wastes, such as household wastes deliberately discharged into rivers, agricultural wastes and many others;(2). Forest Degradation, from illegal logging, to deforestation, to the recent occurrence of forest fires being the cause of forest destruction;(3). Floods, this phenomenon has been frequent in Indonesia, even in big cities itself has become a routine activity that must be faced, not even in the rainy season, even in the dry season floods may occur some areas;(4). Abrasion. Activities such as coastal sand, coral, and mangrove forests are responsible for abrasion, which in turn is related to sea and coastal damage;(5). Air pollution and more impacts due to development.

The question is how far this writing about "ENVIRONMENTAL POLICIES GOOD GOVERNANCE IN THE WAKE OF THE 4th INDUSTRIAL REVOLUTION AT INDONESIA." provides sustainable development.

Keywords: The Disruption, Good Governance, the poverty, Stakeholders, Sustainable development.
